Petition calls for midnight curfew

By Janice Harrington

A petition circulating Didsbury is asking residents to support a resolution which would slap a midnight curfew on Didsbury teens.

The petition asks residents to support the idea of a minor midnight curfew by-law which would see all youths under the age of 18 carry authorization cards if they are out after midnight and would fine them or their guardian $20 if they are caught after midnight without them.

Organizers of the petition refused to be identified but wording of the document shows that they feel this curfew would help to solve some of the vandalism problems Didsbury has been suffering over the summer.

But not everyone feels that the imposition of a curfew is what Didsbury needs. Local restaurant owner Dan Peters said he signed the petition because he felt it was time Didsbury got 24-hour policing.

"I don't feel that the curfew is necessarily the right thing," he said. "But I do feel it's the first step in convincing council or whoever that Didsbury is big enough now that we need to have the police around 24 hours."

Concerns have been raised this summer over the increase in the number of teens hanging out with friends in the downtown area. Some highly public cases of vandalism in the area has also caused some residents to question whether the two are related. Talk of opening a teen drop-in centre to help deal with the problem has come up at Didsbury Town Council. Didsbury's FCSS Coordinator Leslie-Anne Murray said the FCSS is busy researching other drop-in centres to see how they work.

"We received two letters from some Didsbury teens who felt this kind of thing was needed here," said Murray. "Right now we are just doing some preliminary work, looking at other teen centres in Alberta which are successful to see what they are doing right."

Murray said that there is no time deadline on research into this project.

But in spite of all of the concern over the issue of teen hang outs, Didsbury RCMP report that vandalism is down this year over last. Corporal Vaughn Christensen said statistics show that willful damage is on the decline within the town.

"But if council decides to pass a by-law of this type we are in a position to enforce it."

While no one was willing to talk about the plans for the petition, it is believed it will be presented to council sometime this fall.

Strange but true

Bernice Rule couldn't believe her eyes last weekend when her apple tree sprouted blossoms—again. The tree already has apples, some on the same branches as the new blossoms. Rule said the tree hasn't acted normal since they moved into the house two years ago.

Town council notes

Didsbury Town Council will not change funding to the Shock Trauma Air Rescue Society despite its recent provincial contract loss.

Concern had been raised at the last town council meeting over funding because of the change made by the contract expiry.

"I have to question whether these contract changes should affect our funding," said Councillor Doug Sharpe.

But council decided against making any changes to the current funding system. Currently the town donates $1.29 per capita to the Society.

"I think we should continue to support them," said Sharpe. "They do a good job, and support will be more important for them now than ever."

Town of Didsbury administration will be looking into a system which will allow property owners to pay their taxes monthly after a request for the program was made by town residents.

Town Administrator Mike Storey said the town will look into modifying the current computerized tax program to allow for monthly payment billing. Currently taxes are either due in lump payment on July 1, or may be prepaid.

Research into costs for changing the system is expected to be presented to council sometime this month.

The town is continuing to look for volunteers for its newly created Environmental Advisory Board.

Created by by-law last month, the Advisory board will act to help the town become more "environmentally friendly."

Issues under discussion by the board will include town operations, attracting environmentally conscious development and expanding public education.

If you are interested in sitting on the board, call the town office for more information.

An offer to purchase the Didsbury Volunteer Fire Department's tanker has been turned down by Didsbury Town Council.

Council rejected the offer from the Mannville/Innisfree Rural Fire Protection Cooperative because they felt it was too low.

"I think we have to respond and tell them that their bid is not half of what this tanker is worth," said Councillor Doug Sharpe.

The Mannville/Innisfree Rural Fire Protection Cooperative had offered $15,000 for the tanker. The town is expecting to sell the unit for between $30,000 and $40,000.

The sale price of the tanker will be used towards the purchase of a newer model for the Didsbury Fire Department.

RCMP report

Summer is a popular time of the year to move as children are out of school and the weather is good. Many people who move between provinces often wonder how much time they have to change their driver's license and vehicle registration. It is specified under the Motor Vehicle Administration Act that an individual has up to three months to acquire an Alberta driver's license and Alberta registration. A contravention of this act would result in a fine.

During the last two weeks, Didsbury RCMP responded to a total of 161 complaints, 30 of which results in criminal investigation, 54 tickets were issued, including 10 written warnings. One person was charged with impaired driving while another was given a road side suspension. Six motor vehicle accidents occurred during this time period and 5 Liquor Control Act tickets were issued.

Should I Bring My Child To The Funeral?

Just as with adults, children need to express their feelings of grief. To deny your child this emotional outlet is to handicap his natural, maturing development. Children can cope with death better than you may expect.

A child's emotional resiliency is truly remarkable and often under-rated. With adequate preparation, a child may attend the funeral and will be all the better for it. But the child must be told what to expect at the funeral. If he or she understands what is happening, there's a better feeling during and after the ceremonies.

Do not force the child to attend, though. If the youngster often tends to be highly emotional, keep him home and have him join the family later. Each child may react differently, but if you anticipate any problems, feel free to discuss this with us fully at your convenience.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome—in private or publicly through this column.

Business turns hobby into profit

By Janice Harrington

Sewing is something Marian McAdam has done all her life, but now it's turned into a living.

McAdam recently opened up a business called Showtime which uses her interest in making clothes and in the country life to create one of a kind designer clothes for the western scene.

McAdam began the business eight years ago in her home, making custom made clothes for a handful of clients. Last month she joined forces with AWL Leather Works and the two opened a new store of Didsbury's Main Street.

"Sonny [Sherman of AWL] had heard that I made chaps," McAdam said. "So he asked me to go in with him."

McAdam and her three children moved to the area three years ago from Tisdale, Saskatchewan. They now live on an acreage between Carstairs and Didsbury where McAdam raises all kinds of show horses.

It's her interest in horses that is reflected in the clothing she designs. The versatile styles are made for people who show, for country and western entertainers and those who just enjoy the western kind of life.

"Take this jacket for example," McAdam said, pulling down a purple waist jacket decorated with multi-colored graphics. "You could put it with black chaps, a white shirt and tie and be ready for show. Or you could slip it on with black dress pants and a blouse and wear it to the office. I try to keep all the options in mind when I'm making something."

Although she hasn't been at the business very long, McAdam's reknown is growing. She recently talked with country singer Steve Warner about outfitting his band in her designs.

"I guess he wanted to know where Monika with a K got her outfit, so we were introduced," she said. "I feel very flattered and I hope I can talk with them further."

Despite any rush in popularity, McAdam said she plans to keep things small.

"I like to go really slow and learn as I go along. I'm from a farm background and I watched my dad. He did things slowly, never got ahead of himself."

In the mean time, McAdam has made a few changes by moving away from custom made into a more ready-to-wear line. Her clothing includes chaps, shirts, jackets and dusters for both men and women, and while it may be off the rack, McAdam said customers can be sure they won't see exactly the same outfit on anyone else.

"I make one thing at a time, and put colors and designs together that most people wouldn't expect," she said.

Stitching magic

Marian McAdam designs western wear from her business in Didsbury. Catering to the custom design and ready to wear client, she is philosophical about her growing popularity and prefers to keep small until she learns more about the business.

And I know I couldn't make the same thing again because I can never remember what I did!"

OPINIONS/EDITORIAL

A bondage issue?

By Janice Harrington

The petition being passed around town asking for support of a midnight curfew for kids under the age of 18 has me scratching my head over how people perceive things. I wonder why anyone thinks a midnight curfew will change things.

Firstly, imposing another rule on a group already will be known throughout history for rebellion against rules makes little sense. As one teen I talked to said, "What difference will that make? If it goes through it will just be another rule to break."

Secondly, teens hanging around together does not constitute a criminal threat and it's a shame to label all teens troublemakers. Most of these kids are just looking for a place to spend time with their friends, away from the constraints of authority figures. It doesn't mean they are secretly plotting to destroy Eldon Foote Hall. Granted there are a few troublemakers who give the group a bad name, but that's nothing new. But by imposing a curfew, we paint all the teens as untrustworthy and criminally intent. Why join the good kids with the ones who will break the rules no matter what they are?

Thirdly, enforcement of this kind of rule is nearly impossible. As it stands now, Didsbury RCMP patrols an area too large for their resources. Kids will just congregate in hidden areas rather than out in the open, and which would you prefer?

Fourthly, I think more of the vandalism problems stem from those over 18. Those coming out of the bar in the wee hours with a few belts under their belt are more likely to cause problems than a group of bored teenagers.

No, the solution to this problem does not lie in binding teens under 18, but instead in finding things for them to do. All we need is something like a bowling alley or an arcade; a place for them to meet up with friends and engage in some recreation. It'll get them off the street, but I doubt it'll end the vandalism problem.

Quote Of The Week:

"It's a pigment of your imagination." Town Councillor Doug Sharpe referring to fellow Councillor Marjorie Malinowski's charge that someone had switched chairs with her before the council meeting.

Gun law reaction

Dear Editor:

Shades of Nazi Germany! Kim Campbell, our justice minister, has laid down the law and certain firearms will be seized from free, non-criminal Canadians and be destroyed.

What has our once proud free country turned into under the Tories and Liberals and N.D.P.? Certainly there is no difference between any of the three because they all want more gun control.

Will any of this nut house legislation prevent any crimes? Is there any evidence to show that taking arms away from the citizens prevents crime? Certainly not! In fact the evidence is just the opposite as in countries like Switzerland where every able bodied male has his army weapon at home crime as we know it is practically non-existent.

In April Glen KEALY, a hulk (sic) businessman who had lost his fortune and property because he refused to make payoffs to the Mulroney government spoke for three hours in Calgary of the corruption of this government and named names, including the present commissioner of the R.C.M.P. and two assistant commissioners in his accusations. These charges were accepted by a 30 year magistrate but then of course they were dropped by the Mulroney gang. This same bunch are now out to seize the firearms of HONEST people in Canada.

The 10 planks of the communist manifesto contain the following steps. Abolition of private property. A heavy graduated income tax. A central bank. Free education of children in public schools. Communication and transportation in the hands of the state (the C.R.T.C.). Does this sound something like what we have in Canada? Sleep on my friends!

A wise man in the United States once said, "This country and the institutions thereof belong to the people who inhabit it. When they wish to change their government by the ballot it is their right. It is also their constitutional right to change it by force of arms." That fellow was Abraham Lincoln and I think that he was light years ahead of Kim Campbell when it came to intelligence. (sic)

Possibly some of you heard that in the riots in California businessmen with firearms were able to protect their property in some situations. Did you also hear that others applied for firearms but the government made them wait 15 days? Next time you need protection just call Kim Campbell or maybe your member of parliament, Louise Feldham. (sic)

I must confess that when I bought my military rifle I bought it to protect myself from a corrupt government. As Christ said at the last supper in Luke 22:26, "He that hath no sword, let him sell his garment and buy one."

When you think that it's just fine if these people seize Uzi semi automatic pistols don't kid yourself for one minute. When those Jews were being herded into box cars just maybe they thought, "gee why did I turn my gun in?"

Olds

Peace parks wanted

Dear Editor:

The CANADA 125 Peace Parks Across Canada Project was launched May 29, 1992 at Waterton International Glacier Peace Park in Alberta, Victoria Park in Charlottetown and Seaford Park in Vancouver.

Communities all across Canada are invited to designate an existing park as their "Peace Park."

Each Peace Park will have a Peace Grove of 12 trees representing our provinces and territories and symbolizing the life, creativity, and hope for the future that thrives in peace.

This project has now entered the phase of seeking the participation of municipalities, provincial and federal parks organizations, etc. . . . to designate an existing park within their community or region as a Peace Park.

The goal is to have as many Peace Parks as possible dedicated on October 8, 1992, at the same time that the National Peacekeeping Monument will be unveiled in Ottawa.

A series of workshops will be conducted in cities across Canada to provide background about the project and assist representatives in preparing a dedication ceremony in each region or community. In July, workshops are to be held in Saint John's, NF; Halifax, NS; Saint John, NB; Charlottetown, PEI; Ottawa and Toronto, ON. In August, Montreal and Quebec, PQ; Winnipeg, MA.

Report from the Legislature

The Move Toward A Continental Market For Barley
Hon. Roy Brassard, MLA
Olds-Didsbury Constituency
The Alberta Government is working to reduce intervention in the agriculture and food sectors to make agribusiness more market-responsive, more self-reliant, more environmentally conscious and able to promote regional diversity. An important step towards these goals would be the achievement of open access to the North American market for western Canadian barley. Alberta Agriculture Minister Ernie Isley recently released a document entitled 'A Proposal for a North American Continental Market for Barley', proposing changes to the current system to make these goals a reality.

Under the current system, the Canadian Wheat Board has complete control over both wheat and barley export sales from Canada. A major recommendation in the proposal suggests that the Wheat Board issue export licenses at no cost to farmers or farmers' agents requesting access to the continental market to sell their barley. The Canadian barley industry is facing increasing demand from the feed industry, as well as increasing desirability of barley as a crop for farmers.

These factors are leading to a need for barley marketing to be handled with policies that are specific to its needs. Due to its use as a domestic feed, barley requires a more dynamic and flexible marketing plan than wheat. While the current industry insulates barley growers from domestic markets, a new system would allow farmers to better read price signals within the feed complex and better compete in the marketplace.

Grain growers across western Canada are asking for the ability to independently access the United States market. A free continental market contains many advantages for Alberta barley producers. The main advantage would be increased farm income in western Canada both from exports to the United States and from improved North American arbitrage.

The expanded market would also benefit the Canadian Wheat Board by making it more responsive to the needs of the farmers it serves. Farmers would still have the choice of marketing through the Wheat Board if they so choose.

With the GRIP and NISA programs in place to provide Alberta farmers with price and net income guarantees, farmers are better able to access a new open market environment. Farmers more than ever want a freer, unrestricted marketplace and a continental market for barley would be a valuable step in that direction.

Copies of the Proposal for a North American Continental Market for Barley are available by calling the Alberta Grain Commission at 427-7329. If I can be of any further assistance to you or if you would like to express your concerns, please contact me at our constituency office at 556-3132 or my Edmonton office at 422-0141 (collect).

Economy Boosted By Record Exports!
Louise Feltham,
Wild Rose M.P.

Success abroad is the key to a strong economy. Exports increased for the sixth month in a row. Canadian companies are winning in a competitive global market.

In July there were the following announcements:

* Northern Telecom won a $15 million contract from Brazil's long distance telephone company to help Brazil expand its network. (Financial Post, July 1, 1992)

* Siemens won awards for high quality and an increase of 17% in new orders in 1991. (Windsor Star, July 4)

* The University of Calgary received $550,000 by Motorola to help develop new communications technology. (Calgary Herald, July 8)

* Ford of Canada will invest $2 billion on Canadian plants. Funds for research and development will come to Canada too.

(Globe and Mail, July 15)

* Cott Corp. reported record sales and profits, including a major contract with a large retailer and another major contract for bottling and distribution in the U.S. (Toronto Star, July 15)

The Conference Board of Canada's latest report says that the economy will grow more than expected because of strong exports; it revised its forecast on economic growth up to an increased GDP of 1.7%.

Mayor bounces back from illness

By Janice Harrington

Back from the hospital and still sporting his trademark sense of humor, Didsbury's Mayor Don Watt is well on his way to recovery.

Watt returned home late last month after nearly four months in the Foothills Hospital in Calgary where he had gone for a heart operation in May.

The operation, which replaced a valve in his heart, was the third he has undergone since 1984. But in spite of the tenacity for which he is known, it was nearly his last, according to his wife Myrna.

"Two weeks after the original surgery, Don developed severe complications," she said. "He was just like Murphy's Law, everything that could go wrong did."

Complications of the surgery included a collapsing lung, bacterial pneumonia, blood pressure and liver problems and bleeding. Myrna said doctors told her to only take things one day at a time.

"I felt as if we were going around in circles," she said. "Doctors had differing opinions, but for the most part they were always optimistic. Of course by this time Donald was in a coma and they all said this was a good thing because it meant less stress for him."

The Watts both contribute Don's recovery from all the problems to Don's own determination as well as the prayers of family and friends.

"There were so many phone calls, prayers, cards and flowers, it was just overwhelming," said Myrna. "We had friends praying all over the place. My priest came in on Don's lowest day and said some healing prayers. He had been there many times right from the start, but the next day after that, Don started recovering."

Now, 60 lbs. lighter, Don is at home making a rapid recovery. He said returning to Didsbury makes all the difference.

"That's the main thing, it's sure great to come home," he said. "It's the best therapy in the world."

Besides reading and working to regain his strength, Don said he is also busy filling a voracious appetite.

"I've been eating everything that isn't bolted down," he said.

"There was a while when I couldn't eat, and now I'm making up for it."

While unable to get out of the house much these days, Don is managing to keep up on municipal affairs. He hasn't thought much about the upcoming election (scheduled for October), but he isn't ruling out any possibilities.

"I really haven't thought much about it," he said. "I'm just going by goals right now and the next one is to be well enough to go on our vacation this fall. We want to take a Windjammer cruise in the West Indies."

Didsbury home for ex-chuck champ

By Janice Harrington

Finding a new place to hang up his harness, ex-chuckwagon champion Dale Flett is now calling Didsbury home.

The multi-titled Flett and his wife Jean recently purchased a home in Westhill, adding to the growing list of interesting people who make up this town.

Flett, 68, may be familiar to rodeo fans. His racing career spanned 22 years and garnered him numerous championships in rodeo capitals around the country. His awards include 6 trophies for the most points from the Cowboy Protective Association. Those trophies and many others fill the rec room of the Flett's new home in Didsbury. Numerous photographs along the walls document his career, capturing moments like when he broke the track record in Camrose by running 1:02 4/10, and in Cheyenne when he took first place awards 4 out of the 6 times he competed and 2nd the other two times.

Flett, who was born in Hand Hills, Alberta, started in rodeo in the 1940's with bronc riding. He switched over to chucks in 1947 when his brother's pile up convinced him he could do better.

"I was outriding for him and I saw the accident up ahead," he said. "I yelled at him to turn, but he ended up right in the middle of it. After that I told him he was going to have some competition."

Flett put together a team that year, starting a career highlighted with Canadian championships in '57, '59, '61, '62 and wins at the Calgary Stampede in '57, '59, '61, '62, '63, '66 and '67.

Moving away from the bright lights of Calgary where he has lived most of his life was not difficult for Flett; Didsbury is where his daughter and two of his grandchildren live and it's also close to where he keeps his horses boarded.

"I don't let anything stop me from riding," he said. "Despite being hurt many times [he says he can count the number of bones he hasn't broken on one hand], I still don't have any fear of the horses."

But in spite of his love for the animals and his enjoyment of the sport, you won't find Flett as a spectator at any rodeo these days.

"I did what I wanted to do, but I haven't been to a rodeo since I quit in '69," he said. "I didn't want to quit, but I had to and now it's just too hard to watch."

New home

Dale Flett, ex-chuckwagon driver and Lanny McDonald fan, recently made Didsbury his home. Flett and his wife moved to Didsbury from Calgary where they had lived for a number of years to be closer to their daughter and her children and Dale's horses.

Carol & Clarence Owre

Raymond & Wilma are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter Carol-Rae Fischer to Clarence Russell Owre. Wedding took place June 20th at Deer Park Alliance Church, Red Deer. They will make their home in Daysland, AB.

Senior runs for medals at Medicine Hat

Art Bauer thinks nothing of it. For about a month now, he's been training for the 2,000 metre event to be held at the Alberta Seniors Games, August 19th and 20th in Medicine Hat.

Art and his brother Ed are just two of the 1,000 participants competing in over 20 events ranging from bridge and creative writing to slowpitch and golf.

"I kind of like the running myself," says Art, 74. "... I'm not out there to win though. It's just good to be able to watch everyone participate and to meet new people."

Running and walking are just a couple of Art's favorite activities. Over the years, curling has also grown close to this athlete's heart. "We're actually going to go down to Medicine Hat a bit earlier with some other friends to take part in a bonspiel too."

Keeping active is nothing new to Art. Throughout the years, the Torrington-area farmer spent free time coaching boys and girls softball along with taking part in curling.

Apparently, sports runs a common thread through the entire Bauer family. Art says all three of his triplet girls played ball, while his son enjoyed curling and wife shuffleboard.

The "Golden Days" competition coming up on the 19th and 20th will be visited by dozens of area athletes. Among the many participants are: Norma DeLong and Alvin L. Johnson (Bowling), Helen Smith (Creative Writing), Ben Hammer and Dorothy Morphy (Golf) and Verna Bauer and Norman Ensminger (Horseshoes).

Medal winners from the Medicine Hat event will advance to the first-ever 1993 National Seniors Games in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan next September.

Pride parade

The Mountain View County Fair started out with a bang last week with a hour long parade. Clowns, horses and floats from business in and around Didsbury took part. The float from the Olds College, right, took first place in the float decoration competition. For more fair results, see next week's Review.

SUNDRE/WESTWARD HO NEWS

Sunpine agreement reached

A Forest Management Agreement (FMA) with Sunpine Forest Products Ltd. has been approved by Cabinet, announced LeRoy Fjordbotten, Minister of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife.

The agreement provides the company with the rights to establish, grow and harvest timber on the FMA area while the province retains public access rights, fish and wildlife access and other management rights. Through this FMA, a sustained yield of coniferous timber will be provided to Sunpine's proposed laminated veneer lumber (LVL) plant to be built near Rocky Mountain House, and so its existing sawmill and wood treatment plant in Sundre.

These timber rights are contingent upon the company successfully completing all mill site approvals and constructing the new plant according to a fixed schedule.

In addition to the construction of the $30 million LVL plant, Sunpine Forest Products Ltd. will add a $1.2 million small log line to its Sundre operations.

"I am extremely pleased with the announcement," stated Ty Lund, MLA, Rocky Mountain House. "The project represents a major economic boost for the communities of Rocky Mountain House and Sundre. The 310 mill and woodland jobs at Rocky Mountain House and other economic spin-offs resulting from this project, demonstrate the government's commitment to further diversify Alberta's economy."

The integrated operations at Sundre and at Rocky Mountain House will maximize the use of the timber resource by producing a variety of products including posts and poles, lumber, and laminated veneer lumber. Laminated veneer lumber is composed of glued layers of wood, laminated to produce products such as beams and trusses.

An environmentally friendly process that uses waste products will convert bark from logs to steam which will be used to pretreat logs for the LVL process. Sawmill waste residue is already being converted into wood chips for sale and use in pulpmill facilities.

Sawmills in the Rocky Mountain House area will also benefit as Sunpine will provide oversized logs to local operators for manufacturing. As well, small diameter post and pole material will be made available to small contractors in the Rocky Mountain House area for peeling and processing. The processed material will be shipped to Sundre for treatment.

"I'm very pleased that Sunpine's plans will also benefit the community of Sundre and wish Sunpine much success," said Roy Brassard, MLA, Olds-Didsbury.

The 5,670 square kilometre FMA is included in the recently approved David Thompson Corridor integrated resource plan and the Rocky-North Saskatchewan and Nordegg-Red Deer River integrated resource plans (IRPs) approved by Cabinet in 1986. These IRPs provide land use direction of the area.

Public consultation is a major component of preparing and implementing IRPs. These plans ensure a balance in protecting the unique aesthetic, scenic and environmental resources while allowing for the orderly development of tourism, recreation and timber industry on public lands.

"The agreement also requires the company to consult with the public as the company develops their Forest Management Plan," added Mr. Fjordbotten.

In order to accommodate recreation, wildlife and other management uses, 40% of the FMA will be available for timber harvesting activities. In keeping with Alberta's policy of sustained yield, less than 1% of the area available for timber harvesting will be harvested on an annual basis through the Sunpine operations.

What am I?

The following poem is a guessing game. Read carefully and try to determine who the "I" is. If you've read it through but still can't guess, watch next week's Review for more clues.

I am a thing that some can buy,
But none can do without.
I am a gift God gave to man,
I believe without a doubt.

God made me before the animals,
And confined me to the earth.

I can't go high in the sky,
Before I lose my worth.

If I were taken up to heaven,
All flesh on earth would cease.

But with my help and other things,

All life does now increase.

CARSTAIRS NEWS

A wealth of adornment

The Glenbow Museum is coming to Carstairs through a special loan of artifacts which will be on view in The Roulston Museum. The display, features traditional Plains Indian clothing and adornments from the 19th century. Beaded belts and moccasins, bracelets; and bear-claw, hairpipe, and sweetgrass necklaces are included in the exhibit. It will be on view August through October.

The simple garments of the Plains Indian people were enhanced by the application of natural ornaments such as bear claws, feathers, porcupine quills and seeds. The arrival of the Europeans introduced additional materials such as ribbon, beads and cloth, which soon became assimilated into the native culture as materials for adornment. Today, native clothing is rarely seen except at pow-wows and other festive events and the costumes combine contemporary and traditional materials to make a vivid cultural statement.

This display is on view as part of Glenbow's Rural Loans Program, which extends Museum access to outlying Alberta communities. Small exhibits are circulated on a three-month rotation schedule and housed in a single, permanent display case. While the case remains in one venue, the artifacts within it are circulated by Glenbow staff.

CREMONA/WATER VALLEY NEWS

Plans in place for Water Valley Days

By Janice Harrington

Adding to the list of summer, community festivities, Water Valley Days are scheduled for August 15 and 16.

Festival organizer Muriel Foster said plans are all in place for the event which begins Saturday with an early morning pancake breakfast.

"That starts at 7 a.m. and goes until 10," said Foster. "Pine Slope Ranch cooks and J & M Meats donates the sausage."

Directly after the breakfast will be the parade which parade organizer Sheila Fournier said has drawn a number of entries.

"We've had a really good response this year," she said. "But it's hard to calculate any numbers. We always get a lot of horses and bikes entering and this year we are really excited to have the Fort Steele Scout Riders. They're a historical mounted group and they'll actually be here for the whole weekend."

Also joining this year's parade will be world famous whistler Roy Thorsen.

After the parade, Water Valley, famous for its resident artisans, will show off with an antique/arts and crafts show and sale at the Chinook Creative Arts building. Other events throughout the afternoon include demonstrations by the Fort Steele Scout Riders and the Water Valley's Boots and Saddle horse club.

A men's cake baking contest will also be held, with the winner supplying the dessert at the Saturday night BBQ.

One of the largest attractions of the Water Valley Days fair is the Mountain Man competition. Mixed teams of four compete in such events as hatchet throwing, log rolling and fire starting. Foster said teams are also judged on their costumes.

Saturday night winds up with a BBQ and a family dance.

Sunday activities start with another pancake breakfast at 8 a.m. and include a pet show, bingo and children's relay games. Sunday's big event, pig wrestling, starts at 3:30 p.m. A special pig pen, constructed behind the community hall, will house the event.

Also, in conjunction with the fair, a slopitch tournament will be held throughout the weekend.

A silver collection potluck dinner will end the two-day celebration.

Foster said a large crowd is expected to attend this year's Water Valley days.

"We served between 500-600 for dinner last year," she said. "We hope to see more out this year."

Opening quotas for wheat and barley

The Canadian Wheat Board today announced opening quotas for wheat and barley, effective August 1, 1992.

Opening wheat quotas have been set at 80 kilograms (approx. 2.9 bushels) per quota acre for all grades of Canada Western Red Spring wheat and Durum wheat. For all grades of Soft White Spring wheat and Canada Prairie Spring wheat, opening quotas will be 140 kilograms (5.1 bushels) per quota acre. Quotas will start at 270 kilograms (10 bushels) per quota acre for all grades of Canada Western Red Winter wheat and Utility wheat.

Opening contract calls for wheat were also announced for August 1. These include 750 kilograms (approx. 27.6 bushels) per contracted acre for Contract Soft White Spring wheat and Contract Utility wheat and 500 kilograms per contracted acre for Contract Canada Prairie Spring (Red and White) wheat.

With regards to barley, opening quotas will be 110 kilograms (approx. 5.1 bushels) per quota acre for all grades. Farmers holding Series "A" barley contracts will be able to deliver 100% of the tonnage contracted. Quotas for delivery of designated barley will be two rail cars per permit book (one car of two-row and one car of six-row). The Wheat Board indicated that there would be no further quotas announced for the 1991-92 crop year. Based on the amount of space in country elevators and current deliveries, additional quotas were just not possible, the Board said.

Grain exports set new record in 1991-92

The Canadian Wheat Board today announced that bulk exports of Western Canadian grains have set a new crop year record. As of July 30, 1992, a total of 30.69 million tonnes had been exported during the 1991-92 crop year. This breaks the previous record of 30.16 million tonnes set in 1987-88.

The main reason for the record was the large volume of wheat exports. Exports of Western Canadian wheat should total about 24.3 million tonnes, shattering the previous record of 23 million tonnes set in the 1987-88 crop year.

Malting barley exports also set a new record this crop year. According to Wheat Board statistics, exports of malting barley total about 883,000 tonnes, compared to the previous record of 638,000 tonnes exported in the 1990-91 crop year.

The Wheat Board said that while market returns still remain low because of the export subsidy war, high volumes of exports are important to farmers for cash flow purposes and to create room for on-farm storage of the new crop.

In making the announcement, the Wheat Board said it wanted to recognize all facets of the grain industry. A high volume of sales was achieved and farmers have responded well to delivery quotas. In spite of some labor-management difficulties early in the crop year, the grain handling and transportation system recovered to handle a record amount of grain.

Export performance at the West Coast was particularly noteworthy with grain exports possibly reaching a record 20 million tonnes. This compares to the previous West Coast record of 17 million tonnes set in the 1987-88 crop year. Monthly export records were set at the West Coast in eight of the first 11 months of the crop year. July exports should set a new all-time record for one month of two million tonnes.

Dairy producers frustrated by zero price increase

Canadian dairy producers are frustrated by the Canadian Dairy Commission's (CDC) decision to maintain the target price for industrial milk at the August 1991 level.

"Last year's return for industrial milk just won't cover this year's production costs," said Louis Balcaen, President of Dairy Farmers of Canada, the national organization representing the 32,000 milk and cream producers.

The target price for industrial milk is calculated on an annual basis using a detailed cost-of-production formula. This pricing mechanism, introduced in 1988, is designed to measure the actual costs on the farm so that efficient producers receive a fair return for their labour, management and capital. However, several issues have remained unsettled within the actual formula, such as the determination of labour hours, valuation of assets, herd replacement costs and the standardization of milk components.

"These issues are still unresolved after several years' discussion," said Balcaen. "And this inaction has cost producers millions of dollars because the formula, as applied by the CDC, has not reflected true cost increases in the dairy sector," says Balcaen.

One of the major issues in this year's use of the cost-of-production formula was the change in the province of Ontario's method of data collection for labour hours. The Consultative Committee, after much debate, supported the province's move to determine labour hours based on time sheets rather than the previously used interview methodology. Ontario has increased its use of the time-sheet method over the past two years with over 60 per cent of the sample farms currently use this method.

However, the Committee's recommendation to maintain the target price failed to consider these changes in Ontario's labour hours determination. Labour hours for the August 1992 adjustment continued to use the interview approach in the calculation. This method has been shown to underestimate actual time worked. The Consultative Committee should make full use of available time sheet data in their determination of the target return.

Dairy Farmers of Canada's calculations indicate that the utilization of a more accurate labour component, such as the one accepted by Ontario for the pricing of fluid milk, would have resulted in at least a 1.8% increase in the target price for industrial milk. This would represent a shortfall of $35 million dollars to dairy producers. DFC's calculation uses a conservative figure based on half of the difference between the time sheet data and the interview data.

Farmland values decrease

Canadian farmland values decreased in the last half of 1991. Farm Credit Corporation (FCC) research shows a drop of 2% nationally between July 1, 1992 and January 1, 1992, the third such decrease reported over the past 18 months. Land values declined in Ontario and the Prairies, remained stable in the Atlantic region, and increased in Quebec and British Columbia.

There was no change in farmland values in the Atlantic provinces. Quebec land values increased 1.4%, the 7th consecutive modest increase in that province, despite a lower volume of sales. Ontario values decreased slightly (1.3%), following four consecutive increases. The recession in non-agricultural sectors reduced demand in areas close to urban centres, and reduced the number of off-farm jobs which traditionally augment farm incomes.

The volume of land traded was relatively stable in Manitoba, where farmland values dropped 1.6%. In Saskatchewan farmland values decreased 2.9%, despite an increase in transactions. Land values dropped 2% in Alberta.

In British Columbia, the trend of rising farmland values, that started in 1988, continued with a 1.2% increase in the last half of 1991. The land sales market continues to be active. Urban pressure is a strong upward influence, especially in the Okanagan and Fraser valleys.

Copies of the "Farmland Values" report are available on request.

Summer fun notes

Summer Fun Is Going Out With A Splash!
Sylvan Lake Wild Rapids Waterslide Trip
August 19

All 6-12 year olds are welcome to attend Summer Fun's last special event: Wild Rapids Waterslides in Sylvan Lake. The program will be taking the Didsbury Community Bus on August 19, departing at 9:00 a.m. and returning at 4:00 p.m. It will be a great way for children to have some fun before school begins again in September. Please register at the Town Office or call 335-8377 for more information.

During last week's Summer Fun Program, the children took part in the 1992 Summer Fun Olympics. There was a number of activities, including an Olympic day. This week the program is busy celebrating being Canadian. On Monday, the children took part in a Netball Clinic and are hoping to go to Heritage Park on Wednesday. The final week of Summer Fun is next week and there is still room for more children. If your children are interested in attending, register at the Town Office or call 335-8377 for more details.

Alberta seniors games ready to go

By Alister Thomas

Once again Alberta is leading the way as Medicine Hat prepares for the 1992 Alberta Seniors Games, August 19 to 22. These will be the seventh Alberta Seniors Games, by far the most of anywhere else in Canada.

The theme is "Golden Days" and after two years of planning, these Games promise to be the best ever. It's anticipated that over 1,000 participants will compete in 23 activities ranging from badminton and bridge to floor curling and slowpitch. It's expected that several medal winners from these Games will advance to the first ever 1993 National Seniors Games in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan next September.

Members of the Alberta Senior Citizens Sport and Recreation Association have again been actively involved in establishing age groups and rules for the activities, as well as organizing playoffs. Hundreds of seniors volunteers have worked the playoffs in many communities throughout Alberta.

The continued provincial corporate support from companies like Safeway, Pepsi, Alberta Energy Company and AGT, combined with funding from hundreds of local companies, will ensure the financial success of these Games. Service groups such as the Royal Canadian Legion and Loyal Order of the Moose are also fully supportive of these Games.

Morley Roelofs, the Alberta Sport Council's liaison to the organizing committee of these Games, says everything--from planning and preparations to financial considerations and committed volunteers (between 800 and 1,000 are expected)--is "tremendous."

For more information about the 1992 Alberta Seniors Games, please contact Dave Turnbull, Zone 2 Coordinator in the Olds office at 556-4302.

Local participants in these games are:

Carstairs: Creative Writing,

Gwendolyn Bird; Lawn Bowling, Robert Veenstra; Snooker, Daisy Hnidy.

Didsbury: Golf, Sandy Baswick; Horseshoes, Ethel Hunley; Lawn Bowling, Bernice Blois and

er and Norman Ensminger; Track & Field, Art Bauer and Ed Bauer.

Canadian grain commission becomes special operating agency

Chief Commissioner Milton Wakefield has announced that the Canadian Grain Commission received final approval to its submission to become a Special Operating Agency, a measure which will give the agency more autonomy in its operations. This change in status of the federal agency follows the February, 1991 budget announced by the Honourable Michael Wilson, Minister of Finance.

"This formalizes our position as an agency which strives to be service-oriented in our commitment to ensuring the high quality of Canadian grain," said Wakefield in making the announcement.

He added that the Commission is dedicated to keeping Canada competitive in the international marketplace. This is going to mean a continual review of the Commission's quality assurance program to meet customers' needs, which will become easier to do as an SOA. In addition, the Commission will strive to reduce costs at every opportunity.

"An immediate benefit of SOA status to producers and the industry is Treasury Board approval to fund 50% of the cost of the Grain Research Laboratory from government appropriation. This decision reflects the fact that our Laboratory, a world-renowned facility, carries out a portion of its research to the benefit of all Canadians. This will make us more flexible in setting our annual service fees," he said.

The Commission's annual budget is about $53 million dollars; the Laboratory's portion is about $9 million.

Another change is the establishment of a board of directors which includes the three commissioners and six assistant commissioners. "We expect this change to result in more direct input from producers and other members of the industry, which is so important in being service-oriented. Our assistant commissioners are located throughout the grain growing and handling areas, close to the people we serve. They are well-positioned to play an integral role in policy setting," said Wakefield.

Although the Commission has become more independent, it will continue to operate under federal legislation such as the Public Service Employment Act.

The Canadian Grain Commission, a federal agency established in 1912, sets grain quality standards and regulates grain handling. The Commission certifies grades and weights of about 75 million tonnes of grain annually.

THERE'S NO ALTERNATIVE TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages

It's a proven performer. Rugged tough. Durable. A concrete basement will never burn or rot. And concrete is safe. Quality controlled concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

Concrete is an energy-wise choice.
A concrete basement needs little heat or air conditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality controlled concrete. The best basement building material.

Nominees sought for entrepreneur of the year

The search is on for business excellence in Alberta!

Parlee McLaws, Barristers and Solicitors, in association with Peat Marwick Thorne, Levesque
Securities and Quality Color Press is seeking nominations for the prestigious 1992 Entrepreneur of the Year Award.

The award, launched in 1989
by Parlee McLaws, is presented annually to a dynamic individual whose endurance and enterprising spirit has enabled him or her to achieve the ultimate in business success in Alberta. Past winners include Rhys Eyton, CEO of Canadian Airlines and PWA Corporation; Jean Pare of Company's Coming Publishing Limited; and Lou MacE chern, of the Servpro/Dalco group of companies.

Since its inception, the Entrepreneur of the Year Award has gained considerable stature, with three new sponsors joining Parlee McLaws' effort this year.

"We're committed to small business people, since they are the lifeblood of our province.
Many people dream of worthy accomplishments, but entrepreneurs actually stay awake and take action," says Richard McCallum of Quality Color Press.
Don Zinyk of Peat Marwick Thorne says it's only fitting that the organization support such an award since many of its clients are key players in Alberta business.

"Being a sponsor of the Entrepreneur of the Year Award

allows us to acknowledge the outstanding contribution that entrepreneurs make to both our economy and community," he notes.

Levesque Securities Inc. came on board for similar reasons.

"The free market system and entrepreneurship allows Albertans to enrich a growing economy. The Entrepreneur of the Year Award recognizes the strength which individual efforts contribute to our province," says
Vice-President Angus Watt.

The winner, who will be honored September 12 at Alberta Opportunity Company's 1992 Entrepreneurs Conference, will be selected from a committee of prominent business leaders and commentators.

"This is a valuable opportunity for us to recognize the vitality and enthusiasm which are essential elements that entrepreneurs bring to a thriving economy," says David Finlay, of Parlee McLaws.

"Alberta is home to many enterprising individuals whose efforts have truly made a difference to our province. We're looking forward to receiving many top-notch submissions for the Entrepreneur of the Year Award."

Deadline for nominations is August 21, 1992. For more information, and nomination guidelines, contact: David Finlay

Mount View Health Unit news

Value For $6,000

What costs $6,000 (or so), seems to disappear the day you bring it home and tastes good? $6,000 - $6,500 is about the cost of a one year nutritious food basket for a family of four in Mount View Health Unit. Considering groceries can be one of the single largest items a family purchases, it is important to get the best value for your money.

There are hundreds of ways to cut food costs and continue to prepare nutritious foods. There are a few rules of grocery shopping which never change.

Number 1: Know the prices of foods you buy regularly. When you check out the weekly specials in the paper or see a special promotion in the store you will actually know if the food is a good buy.

Number 2: Plan ahead. If you were spending $6,000 or more at one time for any other item, you would analyze the quality, durability, and usefulness of the item. Why don't we do the same thing for food?

Planning ahead for food means checking the papers for specials; shopping around; preparing menus (even very basic menus); and shopping with a grocery list after you have eaten a snack or meal.

Number 3: Use Canada's Food Guide as a guideline on what and how much to buy. Choose healthier snacks from the Breads and Cereals and Fruits and Vegetables group before the expensive chips, fruit flavoured snacks and soft drinks. Buy fruits and vegetables in season and consider Alberta grown vegetables. Try legumes (dried peas, beans and lentils) as inexpensive and healthy replacement for meat, poultry and fish on your weekly menu.

Number 4: Compare food prices at the store. The volunteer food pricers for Mount View Health Unit have learned the value of checking prices of all the similar food. By being thorough, they have learned that generic is usually cheaper, but not always. To help compare food prices, grocery stores need to display food prices clearly and ideally have unit pricing. Unit pricing is determined by the total price of an item divided by 100 grams or ml. This is helpful for foods in different sizes such as cheese; canned foods; cold cereals and cookies. If your usual grocery store is not well labelled or does not have unit pricing, talk to the grocery store manager.

And you thought spending $6,000 was easy! If you want the best value for your money, grocery shopping means planning, taking the time to read labels, and comparing prices.

Wendy Benson, R.D. is the Community Nutritionist at Mount View Health Unit. She can be reached at 221-8000.

Mineral sources questioned

Livestock need trace minerals, but the best source of those minerals has become a question says an Alberta Agriculture nutritionist.

Since chelated, or organic, minerals have come on the market a debate has begun on their value relative to inorganic trace mineral salts used to supplement livestock diets says Barry Yaremco. "There's been the suggestion that chelated minerals are a much better source of trace minerals, but that evaluation isn't complete," he said.

The main advantage of chelates are their bioavailability. Bioavailability is how much of the mineral is absorbed, moved to where it's needed and converted to a useful form by the animal. "However, when this effectiveness is weighed against cost, it's not clear if producers can afford to feed chelates," Yaremco says.

The highest bioavailability given to a chelate mineral is 32 per cent higher than the standard sulphate form Yaremco notes. "This suggests that it's 32 per cent 'better' than the salt form," he said. "However, since chelates are approximately double the cost of feeding inorganic minerals, they don't make sense economically. Using higher levels of inorganic salt forms would be considerably less expensive.

"If continued use of an inorganic trace mineralized salt doesn't correct your problem, then verify that you are dealing with a trace mineral problem. That means looking at your management, feed and facilities. Once you've assured yourself that you are dealing with a trace mineral deficiency, then consider a chelated mineral," he says.

"There are a few situations where it may be more reasonable to suffer the consequences of the problem than to correct it using chelates," he adds. "Particularly, when the cost to solve the problem is much greater than the benefits received.

"As we acquire a better understanding of trace mineral problems, and chelates mode of action, there may be more situations where chelates will be beneficial."

Cobalt, iodine, copper, manganese, zinc and selenium are all essential trace minerals for a cattle herd. Several of these elements are required for proper functioning of the immune system. Deficiencies may lessen an animal's ability to fight off diseases.

Reduced fertility and growth rates—long calving seasons and reduced weaning weights—are production problems associated with trace mineral deficiencies.

Housing starts up in second quarter

National housing starts rose 7.8 per cent during the second quarter of 1992 to a seasonally adjusted annual rate (SAAR) of 165,000 units, reported Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC). First quarter starts were at 153,000 units.

Improvement in the second quarter was due to higher starts of single-detached dwellings which, although lower than the levels posted during the second half of 1991, climbed to 90,000 units from 77,000 units in the first quarter. Starts of multiple dwellings were at 75,000 units in the second quarter, inching down 1,000 units from the preceding quarter.

"Second quarter activity bounced back from the abnormally low level in the first quarter, mainly as a result of higher starts in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces," said Gilles Proulx, Chief Economist of CMHC's Market Analysis Centre.

Ontario starts eased to 55,000 from 56,000 units SAAR during the second quarter. A gradually improving trend in single-detached starts partially offset lower activity in the multiples market.

Housing starts in Quebec bounced back to 45,000 units from 33,000 units SAAR as most markets experienced rising activity during the second quarter. The recovery was greatest in the single-detached market. First quarter levels had subsided following the end of a provincial construction support program.

In British Columbia, starts fell to 35,000 units SAAR in the second quarter, down from 40,000 units in the first quarter. However, starts activity did rebound by the end of the second quarter as seasonally adjusted starts reached a level of 40,000 units in June.

Prairie region activity held steady at 20,000 units SAAR as a result of slight increases in Alberta (to 17,000) and Saskatchewan (to 2,000), offset by a drop of 2,000 units in Manitoba.

All four Atlantic provinces posted higher activity levels on a seasonally adjusted rate, lifting total starts in the region to 10,000 units SAAR, up from 4,000 units in the previous quarter. Activity levels reached 2,000 units in Newfoundland, 1,000 in Prince Edward Island, 4,000 in Nova Scotia and 3,000 units in New Brunswick.

On an actual unadjusted basis, construction started on 51,797 dwellings in the second quarter, a jump of 11.4 per cent over last year's second quarter level.

Literacy program created

Imagine for a moment what it would be like if you couldn't read a menu, decipher your car manual, or read to your children. Being illiterate is a tremendous social problem and the stigma attached to illiteracy is often more than enough to prevent people from admitting they need help.

The threat of illiteracy to Canada's economic well-being is even more ominous, as revealed in the benchmark 1988 Woods Gordon study for the Canadian Business Task Force on Literacy. At that time the lack of functional literacy was costing Canadian society and the economy more than $4 billion a year in reduced productivity and lower efficiency. Today that figure is certain to be much higher.

As one of the largest employers in the country, Canada Post Corporation recognizes the need for both public and private sector involvement if solutions are to be reached. As a company whose business is distribution of words—both written and electronic—it is easy to understand why the corporation has a vested interest in helping stamp out the problem of illiteracy.

Canada Post has been actively raising awareness of the need for literacy for some time now, and with their 'Words Across Canada' campaign, they're working harder than ever to deliver the message to all Canadians.

The corporation has chosen September to focus on literacy with a multi-media campaign. A continuation of the program conducted last year on the anniversary of International Literacy Day, this year's campaign has been expanded to an entire month. Part of the 1992 'Words Across Canada' campaign ensures that Canadian television stations are provided with copies of a one-hour television broadcast called 'Flight for Freedom.' This award-winning film is sponsored by Canada Post Corporation and depicts courageous adults who have recently learned to read and write.

Canada Post's campaign also involves providing radio stations with tapes of the literacy anthem sung by the Mendelssohn Youth Choir. This inspirational song is a tribute to the courage and determination of the many people struggling to deal with their own personal flight for freedom.

Canada Post's involvement in literacy is extensive. For example, the corporation developed a number of motivational and educational videos and made them available for distribution to businesses, schools, literacy groups and communities. The series includes topics such as Literacy in the Workplace, Successful Fundraising for Literacy Groups and Skills Upgrading in the Workplace.

The people at Canada Post hope their campaign will go a long way to raising awareness of the literacy issue in Canada. If their track record is anything to go by, the program should be quite successful.

Canada Post's involvement benefits everyone and makes good business sense. With efforts like Canada Post's 'Words Across Canada' campaign and a lot of hard work and support, solutions are possible. For further information please contact Canada Post Corporation at (613) 734-7582.

Wedding surprise

These culprits decided to surprise town foreman Hans Janssen and Edna Hooper on their wedding day by redesigning Edna's car. The "friends" decorated with balloons and streamers in the wedding colors. Janssen and Hooper were married on Saturday.
